

The Coming Change

The world is in the grip of a socio-economic change and shortage which undoubtedly will end up in the reorganization of the world administrative structure.

An unprecedented change which stems from neglecting its nature and its reasons for appearance at the present is as the persistent and out of control inflation which many easily uproot the social order.

The unprecedented change which ignoring its nature and reason for its appearance at the present time may be as destructive as a persistent and unabated information will easily eradicate the social order who destroy Antagonize their own selves and harbor no sense of shame and moreover considers it a sign of intelligence and pride- -stemming from a false identity adopted by some socio-economic executive of some world societies which by losing the main road and trotting shabby dead-ends have confronted the world with a shortage ending in structural change in the world administration. Be that as it may.

Under such condition to avoid the losses resulting from the coming change, as well as enjoying its innumerable advantages may be possible only through tolerance, reason and necessary forbearance in confronting the coming events.
